25 in Edition

This is my first attempt at sculpting a North American animal. I have seen many sculptures and paintings of this animal and apart from one small sculpture of a Bison during the rut, all artistic impressions of this animal have him with his nose down and docile. I did not believe that this was case for an animal such as this and my inquiries proved that the Bison during the rut can only be described as “Busy With Attitude.” So here he is, not angry, but certainly thinking about getting that way.
